What you'll learn:

- Define what constitutes complex care pediatrics, including conditions and situations that necessitate specialized multidisciplinary care.
- Highlight the importance of effective care coordination among healthcare providers, caregivers, and community resources to optimize outcomes.
- Empower caregivers with resources and strategies to effectively advocate for their child's needs and navigate the complex healthcare system.

About the presenter:

Patrick T. Reeves, MD, FAAP, DABOM is a board-certified Pediatric Gastroenterologist and Hepatologist practicing in San Antonio, Texas. He also maintains board certifications in General Pediatrics and Obesity Medicine. He was an early-adopter of telemedicine and e-consults prior to the SARS-CoV-2 pandemic with research in the field starting in 2016. His primary clinical focus is children with medical complexity.

Dr. Reeves has extensive quality improvement and research dedication to the enhancement of care using digital communication and e-Health. In fact, over the last ten years, Dr. Reeves has developed more than a dozen point-of-care, e-Health Solutions called Clinical Action Plans which make care faster, more guideline-concordant, safer, and easier for providers.
